Cookie Statement

Our website uses first party and third-party cookies. Cookies are small data files that can be automatically stored on or read from the visitor's device (such as PC, tablet, or smartphone) when visiting a website.

We use the following types of cookies:

Functional cookies	Functional cookies are used to make the website work properly. These cookies are, for instance, used to make the forms on our website work properly. These cookies will be stored temporarily and are cleared when you close your browser.
Analytical cookies	Analytical cookies are used to measure usage of the website. This can help us to improve the structure, navigation and content of the website and make it as user-friendly as possible for you. One of the ways we measure our site performance is by using Google Analytics. On behalf of us, Google will use this information to analyse your usage of our website, to compile reports about website activities and further to provide web related services, in this context, to us. All data shared with Google Analytics are limited with regard to the traceability of visitors to our website as much as possible, for example the last digit groups of each IP address are anonymized. For more information about Google Analytics cookies, please see Google's Help pages and Privacy Policy. If you want to disable these cookies, you can do so by using the Google Analytics Opt-out Browser Add-on.
Marketing cookies	With your consent we use marketing cookies. Those cookies build up a profile of you based on your surfing behaviour on our site. This profile can be used to serve you more relevant ads.

Sharing data with third parties

To provide our services, we sometimes rely on third parties. For example, a hosting provider. We only share your personal data with third parties when this is allowed by current legislation. That means we only share data when we have engaged them to help us provide our services. Or if you give us permission, we have a legitimate interest or we are legally required to do so.

Third parties that might process your personal data on our behalf or yours are:

- IT suppliers and service providers
- Payment service providers
- Legal service providers
- Customer support providers-
- Affiliated entities and other service providers providing services to us
- Marketing companies

We take commercially reasonable steps to require third parties to adequately safeguard your personal data and only process it in accordance with our instructions, as consistent with applicable legal requirements.

COMPANY may disclose your personal data to parties located outside the European Economic Area (EEA) to provide the services. COMPANY will only do so if this is necessary and when there is an appropriate level of protection for the processing of personal data.

Please note, if you use our services outside of the EEA, your data may be transferred outside the EEA for us to be able to provide the services to you.

Your privacy rights

Based on the current privacy legislation, data subjects have the following rights regarding their personal data:

- Right of access: you have the right to access the personal data we process about you.
- Right to rectification: if personal data we process about you is incorrect or incomplete, you have the right to correct or supplement it.
- Right to object: you have the right to object to the processing of your personal data and to direct marketing.
- Right to erasure: you may request us to erase your personal data.
- Right to withdraw your consent: if the processing of your personal data is based on consent, you can withdraw your consent at any time.
- Right to data portability: in certain circumstances and to the extent it is technologically possible, you have the right to have the personal data we process about you transferred to a third party.
- Right to restrict processing: in some cases, you can request that we restrict the processing of your personal data (temporarily or otherwise).

We will generally comply with your request within one month. However, this period may be extended by two months depending on the specific privacy rights or the complexity of the request. If we extend this period, we will inform you in good time. We may ask you to identify yourself before fulfilling your request. We do this, so that we can ensure that the requested personal data really belongs to you. Should you feel we have not been able to help you properly with any questions about your privacy, you have the right to file a complaint with the Data Protection Authority in your country.
